General Summary

Nicole Hodac is a certified specialist in oncology nutrition. Nicole started her college career as a music major hoping to teach music, but after meeting her husband she was introduced to the world of nutrition in the physiology sphere. As a registered dietitian, she evaluates the nutrition status and needs of patients undergoing cancer care and continues to work with them throughout their treatment. Nicole strives to strike a balance as an advocate for disease risk reduction and improvement in patients quality of life by putting the right tools in their hands for improved self-efficacy.
