*A true story of courage, survival,
and achievement –
against impossible odds.
A moving and inspiring
memoir by Sasha Vukelja, M.D.*

How a young woman and her mother, escape from Communist Yugoslavia to a new life in America. In this incredible account, Sasha and her mother walk out of prison and into the open arms of strangers across Europe. They finally arrive in America with only a few suitcases of clothes, her mother's rolled-up paintings and a handful of English words. Sasha quietly pursues her childhood dream of becoming a physician. But she must overcome poverty, language barriers, discrimination, and her mother's disapproval, to continue her unlikely journey to becoming one of the most respected oncologists in America.
