Other Information

My focus is making sure my patients have a full understanding of their treatment plan while providing a compassionate environment where we can team up to fight cancer. Their fight is my fight, and I want my patients to feel secure that they do not have to fight this battle alone.

Breast cancer can be frightening and treatment difficult. No one should have to do it alone. For many years, I have dedicated my career to making this trying time as easy as possible by providing expert care and compassionate support. I understand that breast cancer treatment does not begin and end in the operating room. My goal is to be with you for each step, from diagnosis to recovery, providing you the information, support and expertise you need to face breast cancer with confidence.

It's an honor to provide my breast cancer patients with individualized, compassionate surgical care
